Russian Diamond Mining Company Repeats Carbon Neutrality Record

ALROSA, producer of 30% of the global rough diamond extraction, and the world's leading producer of natural diamonds by volume, announced recently that it has, for the second consecutive year, received an internationally recognized verification certificate confirming the carbon neutrality of its diamonds and their negative carbon footprint. Having improved the production of its diamonds, the company says it enhanced its diamond carbon-footprint performance by 60% compared with 2024.
